

Forensic Pathology Fellowship

The Office of the Chief Medical Examiner of the State of Oklahoma is offering an ACGME-accredited, one year fellowship in forensic pathology at its central division in Oklahoma City for the academic years 2016-17 and 2018-19.

The fellow, under the guidance of seven board-certified forensic pathologists, will be expected to complete between 200 to 300 forensic autopsies during the year. The fellow will also receive dedicated training time in forensic toxicology, forensic anthropology, and criminalistics. The latter occurs at the state-of-the art crime lab of the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation in Edmond, Oklahoma. The fellow will also actively participate in the investigative arm of the agency throughout the training year by spending time on scenes with our ABMDI- certified investigators. The fellow will gain experience in legal proceedings, including participating in mock trials with the local law schools as well as attending depositions and courtroom testimonies. The fellow will be directly involved with the in-house Lodox x-ray, neurology, laboratory, histology and radiology. Opportunities for research and publication are abundant.

This statewide Medical Examiner agency program offers exposure to a wide variety of forensic cases derived from a population of nearly 4 million persons. Case analysis occurs in daily morning meetings, weekly scheduled case discussions, a monthly didactic lecture series, and one-on-one guidance with the staff forensic pathologists. Many other conferences pertaining to a wide variety of pathology and forensic issues are available at the nearby University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center and the University of Central Oklahoma Forensic Science Institute.

Forbes Magazine ranked Oklahoma as the number one recession- proof state in America. Home to several excellent universities and a winning NBA team, the Sooner State was honored for the stable economy, low unemployment rates, and affordable housing. In addition, Oklahoma City is one of the fastest growing cities in the United States and has a variety of activities to offer which include collegiate sports, professional basketball, museums and theatre.

Compensation

Resident applicants must be either board certified or eligible in AP and/ or AP-CP (ABP). The salary is $100,000 plus generous state benefits. The fellow will have a private fully-equipped office and an educational fund of $1250 (to use for purchasing books or attending conferences). The state benefits include longevity payments, so that if the successful fellow is invited to join the staff, the fellowship year counts toward accrual.
